

POSSESSION

The sunset dies, but lives again
In the poppy's crimson bloom;
The twilight fades, but silver stars
Shine through the enfolding gloom.

Joy walks with us a little way,
Great as a joy can be;
Then drops our clinging hand and goes –
But ah, the memory!

by Beth Slater Whitson

From: Metropolitan Magazine
Vol. 26, No. 5, Pg. 539
August, 1907