

THE WISDOM OF BABES

Who labors gladly through each burning day,
 And homeward, stops to pluck some wayside flow'r
And fondle it with aching toil-worn hands,
 Knows well the beauty of each passing hour.

By Beth Slater Whitson

From: Sunset Magazine
Vol. 20, No. 4, Pg. 344
February, 1908