

TWILIGHT

The western hills are now with darkness rimmed,
The sky a sliver shield with white stars set;
Upon the stream's transparent breast is limned
Great rugged trees in solid tone of jet;
The fields with graying shadows are bedimmed,
And spent winds 'mid the tangled grasses fret.

By Beth Slater Whitson

From: The Eau Claire Leader (WI) Newspaper
Friday – June 19, 1906 – Page 2
And taken from the July "Metropolitan" Magazine